Search For Assistant Town Manager Winding Down

KATHLEEN D. BAILEY
LONDONDERRY TIMES

The process for selecting an assistant Town Manager for Londonderry is winding down, with a decision expected to be made by the first of the year.

Town Manager Kevin Smith said Monday that the Town Council has winnowed the 50 applicants to "a few finalists" and that a decision should be made by the end of this month.

Though the meeting was a nonpublic session, Smith did confirm that a Council meeting this past Saturday had to do with the selection process.

Smith said the position, which will combine

Town Land Abutting I-93 Undervalued by State DOT

Conservation Commission member Roger Fillio summed up the group's reaction to the state's offer of $600 for a 1.08 acre parcel of town land: "I've got a wheelbarrow full of dirt I'll sell them for that price."

Fillio and the Commission, led by Chair Marge Badois, heard an update from Town Manager Kevin Smith on the state's offer to buy the parcel abutting I-93. The group thought the land was worth more, and directed Smith by consensus to go back to the Department of Transportation with a counter-offer.

Smith reminded the group that the parcel is part of an 11-acre tract abutting I-93. Its official address is 51-R Trolley Car Lane and it is accessible through the rear of Trolley Car Lane. While there is no official easement on the property, Smith said it has been considered "de facto" conservation land for years.

The state is offering to purchase the land as part of a utility easement and drainage easement needed for the widening of the Interstate.

The state's attitude, according to Smith, is, "We're going to take it anyway, so we might as well figure out the easiest way."

The state's appraiser came back with a price tag of $600, according to Smith. "They said there's no frontage, it's all wetlands and it abuts I-93," he said, explaining why the state thinks the land is undevelopable.

Smith said his reaction was, "Really?"

He had a town appraiser look at the land, and the town appraiser came back with an assessed value of the whole parcel at $24,205, with the 1.08 acres clocking in at $2,600. "That is at a 99.9 percent assessment ratio," Smith told the board.

He has spoken to the town attorney, who told him the town could walk away from the deal, but

Londonderry District Braces for Budget Needs

KATHLEEN D. BAILEY
LONDONDERRY TIMES

The Londonderry School Board is trusting Superintendent Nate Greenberg and his administrative team to "work some magic" after being presented with a potential operating budget and warrant articles that would if approved be 1.69 percent higher than last year's, with a 3 cent increase in the tax rate.

Greenberg and Business Administrator Peter Curro presented the 2018 budget blueprint in the Nov. 22 special budget meeting of the School Board. While board members agreed that the original number is a challenge, they agreed to work with Greenberg and his team to make as much of it happen as possible.

The working operating budget recommended by the SAU office is $71,773,909. This in itself is a -1 percent increase on the tax rate, if approved, and $995,906 higher than the FY 17 budget. It is a 1.41 percent increase over FY 17.

After discussion with administrators at the district's six schools, the working budget was reduced by $1,039,055, Greenberg told the board.

However, Greenberg said, the SAU staff is also recommending four warrant articles including the following:

The district has reached a tentative agreement with the custodians' collective bargaining unit, which will most likely be on the warrant. The district is currently in negotiations with the teachers'

Typhoons Celebrate Toga Tuesday Before Holiday Break

The Londonderry Middle School seventh grade Typhoon pod held its annual Toga Tuesday just before the Thanksgiving break. The event was part of their Greek studies and featured Olympic Games like the Long Jump, "Chariot Races," Drinking Straw Javelin, Shot Put, High Jump, Discuss Throw and a Left Handed Sponge Squeeze. Students were also graded on their attire, the more they wore, the higher the score.

Local Artist Behind Many Londonderry Designs

MELISSA BETH RUIZ
LONDONDERRY TIMES

Longtime Londonderry resident Patricia Verani has crafted many wonderful works during her time as an artist. With sculpting as her medium, she has brought many works of art into the third dimension.

Verani (née Lewis) was born Jan. 2, 1927 in Long Island, New York. She graduated with honors from the Boston Museum School of Fine Arts in 1948, and won a scholarship to study in Paris under sculptor Ivan Mestrovic, who constructed such works as the Monument of Gratitude to France in Belgrade, and The Bowman and The Spearman in Chicago.

After World War II, she met Osvaldo Verani, whom she would marry on April 24, 1950. The couple moved to New Hampshire in the early 50's, and opened Verani's Restaurant in Manchester in 1955, closing in 1965 when they would start Verani Real Estate in Londonderry.

Verani began freelance sculpting in 1978, and created several noteworthy projects, such as the 8-foot bronze Fighting Black Bear of the University of Maine in 1979. She also designed the U.S. Commemorative Silver Dollar in 1987, the Olympic U.S. Commemorative Silver Dollar in 1988, the Commemorative Half Dollar for Congress in 1989, and the Flagbearer Olympic Coin in 1996.

Among her many artistic achievements include works done for the Town of Londonderry. She is the sculptor of the Johnny Appleseed statue that greets residents at the Leach Library, the creator of Bicentennial coins for the town and designer of the town's 250th Anniversary commemorative coin. She designed the sign for the Londonderry Historical Museum, and she has also created designs featured in the Londonderry Commons, such as the Minuteman bronze dedicated to the Londonderry citizens who fought for our freedoms in the Revolutionary War, and the emblem of a dove emerging from wreckage in remembrance of those lost on Sept 11.

Verani had also designed the Verani Realty floats for past Old Home Day parades. According to her daughter, Margherita Verani, "They were really a work of art versus a (parade) float." Margherita Verani is now owner of Verani Realty with her brother, Gianni.

Revolutionary War Monument: The minuteman bronze on the Revolutionary War Commemorative Monument in the Londonderry Commons.

Patricia Verani has the Londonderry Commons Committee since 1995. Verani is now in her retirement years and won't be designing any future pieces, according to her daughter. However, the work she has done for the town will be admired and appreciated for many years to come.

Freedom Inspired Dreams

For many Cuban refugees who escaped their homeland for America, Fidel Castro represented little more than a tyrant who threatened their freedom and existence. His recent death drew world-wide attention to the island nation and rekindled memories of his decades-long rule.

For refugees, Castro evokes images of choking repression, the paralyzing control of their daily lives, unjust prison time and impromptu firing squads.

He is the reason so many climbed onto makeshift rafts, and virtually anything that would float, to risk their lives and leave Cuba—to attempt the perilous crossing of the Straits of Florida—for a chance at freedom in the United States.

Their determination to escape a cruel dictator and experience liberty on foreign soil illustrates how precious freedom is when it is lost, and how it shouldn't be taken for granted.

Try envisioning what life would be like without many of the freedoms that are part of the fabric of America and written into the Constitution.

Freedom is the cornerstone of a democratic society and provides individuals with the ability to choose career paths and personal goals. Instead of a dictator, they control their own lives and their own destinies.

Many of the greatest inventions the world has ever seen have come from America and the creative environment that flourishes in this country. In the free marketplace, individuals with the best ideas and inventions can find success and society as a whole can benefit. In contrast, those who live in repressive societies, such as Castro's Cuba, lack basic freedoms and have no incentive or motivation to follow their dreams. Instead, they are forced to live uninspired and unmotivated lives and almost never see the fruits of their labor.

While some Cuban refugees didn't complete the hazardous journey and died along the way, they found a freedom of a different kind in the pursuit of freedom. But many who refused to give in to Castro and left to seek a better way of life found the freedom they were seeking. They arrived in this country with little or no money but somehow managed to make ends meet and ultimately succeeded. They went on to start families and build businesses. It wasn't easy for many who encountered obstacles along the way. In the end, they only achieved success through hard work, perseverance and determination.

They continue striving to reach their own goals, free to pursue the American dream.

union, allied health services union and support staff union, and if these agreements are reached, they will also be on the warrant.

Addition to the Maintenance Trust Fund. The fund has operated on a "pay as you go" basis, with Curro and Facilities Director Chuck Zappala discussing what projects need to be done and then asking for the appropriate amount. He would like to change this process to forecast project needs six years out, he said.

Addition to the Special Education Trust Fund.

Addition to the Capital Equipment Reserve Trust Fund.

Money appropriated to conduct asbestos removal throughout the district. The asbestos in district buildings is contained and regularly inspected, he said, but the district would still like to have it removed and Zappala is getting estimates.

With the four warrant articles estimated at $1,113,474, the total amount to be raised by taxation would be $72,887,383, a 1.6 increase over FY 17 and 3 cents on the tax rate, Greenberg said.

Cost avoidance and revenues

Greenberg pointed to several efforts on the district's part to save money and increase revenues. One money [saving tactic is to bring as many of the district's special education students "home" as possible, creating in-house programs for them. Since 2006 the district has saved $77,800,000 in "cost avoidance" through in-district programs and expects to save $9,339,374 in 2018, he said.

The district's energy savings programs have resulted in a $6 million savings since their inception and are poised to save $300,000 off the 2018 budget, he said. The district's energy consumption is 30 percent below the state average, he said.

The Memorandum of Understanding with the Hooksett School District and tuition revenues from Auburn and Candia have brought in $1,040,714, he told the board. Tuition revenues offset the tax rate by 27 cents, and the total of "cost avoidance" and revenues saves the district $10.8 million and $2.83 off the tax rate.

Other factors

Other factors affecting this budget include the phasing-in of a new elementary math program; the expansion of mobile computer labs; increasing Internet security; and the downshifting of state employee retirement costs. The district's portion of state retirement will cost $529,916 this year, he said.

A student enrollment that is on the rise will also affect the budget through staffing changes, Greenberg said. From 2006 to 2017, Londonderry saw a 1,129 decline in its student population. With better economic times and new housing development in Londonderry, the district as of Oct. 1 had 58 more students than it did last year. That includes 108 more in grades 1-5 than were projected, and 45 more in kindergarten.

During the "drop" from 2006 to 2017, the district reduced its workforce by 60.8 certified staff members and 78.4 non-certified. They did add some special ed positions to staff the in-house programs, he said, and the net reduction was 137.7.

Next year's projected enrollment is 4,423, an increase of 12, he said. But another 95 are expected, mostly in the elementary grades, from new construction. "We have potentially 4,578 students for next year," Greenberg said.

He is requesting four new elementary teacher positions, one each for the district's three elementary schools and a fourth in readiness for whichever K-5 school sees a spike in enrollment. In addition, he is requesting a Pupil Services Coordinator for the district, pointing out that the district is seeing more Special Education, 504 and ESOL students. He plans to reduce two high school positions, based on enrollment, for a net increase of three positions at $255,238.

Curro reminded the board that the proposed budget will also fund 6.4 positions approved by the board after the last budget season closed, and that now have to be picked up by the regular budget.

However, he said, the construction bond for the Middle School expansion is coming off this year.

The SAU is also requesting two more buses, one for regular education and one for special education, Curro said.

"This is going to be tough," board member Steve Young said. "It is $564,000 over the default budget. It's been 12 to 13 years since we've been over default."

"It's hard to overlook that this is a big budget," Chairman Nancy Hendricks agreed.

"We have our work cut out for us," member Leitha Reilly said. "It's hard work, but I trust we'll get there."

The board's next meeting is Tuesday, Dec. 6, at 7 p.m. in the Town Council chambers. The board will discuss and tweak the budget in meetings Dec. 8, 13 and 15, also at 7 p.m.

St. Jude's Blue Angels Project Benefit's Families This Christmas

MELISSA BETH RUIZ
LONDONDERRY TIMES

For over 30 years, Londonderry Resident Kay Doyle has worked with St. Jude Parish in Londonderry to ensure that local families in need don't go without on Christmas.

Doyle runs the food pantry out of the St. Jude Parish, which is operated by volunteers year-round to provide food for needy families in the community.

The "Christmas Blue

Angels" project is a way for the people of Londonderry to give to those who have fallen on hard times to help them make Christmas a little brighter for their families.

Families in need of assistance from the Blue

Angels project submit items that their children would like and/or need that holiday, and those requests are written on a "Blue Angel" to be hung on a Christmas tree for potential donors to select from.

The project has benefited many families throughout the years, and has even brought in people from outside of the community who are interested in helping their fellow man.

"We have the most giving town, with the most giving people," said Doyle. "It's a pleasure to do this type of work."

Donors are encouraged to purchase items that parents would enjoy and benefit from, as well, even if they are not written on the Angel, as they most often are not.

"Most mothers will say, 'Take care of the kids, I'm fine.'" Said Doyle. She added that they would love to be able to give to parents who put their children before themselves.

The Blue Angels project also sends a care package of holiday food along with each set of gifts for the families, including turkey or ham, stuffing, veggies, mashed potatoes, pies, bread mixes, etc. Volunteers work hard to ensure that each family gets what they need, and that the items are high quality.

"We have food sorters...and we sort everything and check all the dates." Said Doyle.

Donors need not worry about bringing over perishable food items such as fresh hams and vegetables, as the Parish has a cooler to store such items in Residents interested in lending a helping hand in sorting food items for families are encouraged to stop by the Parish starting December 6th.

"Our doors are open," said Doyle. "Everyone can come and see all the families helping."

Blue Angel gifts and food items are being collected until the end of masses on December 3rd and 4th, and no later than December 10th and 11th at the Family Room just inside of the main door of the St. Jude Parish. For more information on the Blue Angels Project and how to contribute, contact Kay Doyle at (603) 434-1827.

Reflections on A Day Which Will Live in Infamy

MELISSA BETH RUIZ
LONDONDERRY TIMES

“December 7th, 1941, a date which will live in infamy...no matter how long it may take us to overcome this premeditated invasion, the American people, in their righteous might, will win through to absolute victory.”

This quote, inscribed on the World War II Memorial in Washington, DC, was said by President Franklin D. Roosevelt the day after Pearl Harbor, located on the island of Oahu, Hawaii, was suddenly attacked by Japanese aircraft carriers at 7:48 AM Hawaiian Time.

Assitant Town Manager

There were no internal assisting him with a Director of Personnel position, was advertised on the New Hampshire Municipal Association Web site and on the town Web site.

Over 2,400 U.S. service personnel lost their lives during the attack.

These events lead President Roosevelt to call for a declaration of war, which was met with almost unanimous approval by the Senate and the House.

American citizens united after the events, and a common rallying cry throughout this time and during all of World War II was “We’re All In This Together.”

This year will mark the 75th anniversary of the attack on Pearl Harbor. Although it is not a federal holiday, Pearl Harbor Remembrance Day is still very much a significant in United States history and in the history of the Second World War.

There are approximately 2,000 to 2,500 survivors of the events at Pearl Harbor, all of them well into their 90’s.

William Graser, Londonderry resident, veteran, and author of Veterans’ Reflections: History Preserved, a book which recounts the stories of local veterans from World War II through the war in Afghanistan, says “Once they are gone, so are their stories and a piece of history. It is our duty as Americans to keep the memory of what happened...alive for future generations.”

When asked how he felt was the best way to honor those affected by and lost on December 7th 1941, Graser said, “As a veteran, I stop for a moment and reflect and pray for those lost.”

This Wednesday, December 7th, 2016, take a moment in remembrance of those we lost on that “date which will live in infamy.” Those with relatives still with them, who experienced the events first hand, reach out and thank them for their service, take time to listen to their stories, and make every effort to preserve their memories for the generations to come.

Those who would like to read more on our local veterans and their experiences during the time of Pearl Harbor, World War II, or up through the war in Afghanistan, can find Graser’s book at the Leach Library, Barnes and Noble in Manchester, or online at Barnes and Noble, Amazon and iuniverse.com.

that the state would take Londonderry to court and end up getting the land anyway.

“We could ask the state to accept a counteroffer,” Smith said, and suggested $2,000.

Under the statutory process, any sale would have to go through Conservation, the Planning Board and two public hearings, according to Smith.

The drainage easement is an additional 775 square feet and the utility easement, 19,650 square feet.

Members asked Smith to clarify whether the State’s offer was an outright purchase or purchase of the easement, and Smith said it was an outright purchase.

“If we don’t accept their offer within 30 days, they will issue a Declaration of Taking,” he said. The state would take the 1.08 acres plus the square footage designated for the two easements, he said.

Member Mike Speltz said he knew of a similar appraisal done recently and that was $2,000 for a parcel that was “wet and unbuildable.” The town appraiser’s figure was not, he said, “far off the mark.”

“If it’s going to happen anyway, it would be nice to get $2,000 out of it,” Speltz observed.

Smith said the DOT wanted to have the deal secured by Christmas, to which member Deborah Lievens said, “Some of the work on 93 is five years out. I don’t see what the rush is.”

“Are they going to get all their stuff in for the Planning Board?” member Gene Harrington asked.

Smith said it was possible that the state could submit its materials in time for a December meeting.

Speltz said, “I would approve of the sale if we can renegotiate the price.” He also called for an assurance that the land would not be developed, and that the impact of I-93 would be minimal.

The Commission approved the sale by a hand vote, on the condition that a better price be negotiated, DOT pick up all the costs of the subdivision and recording of plans, and that development be limited to the detention pond and maintenance.

Remodel Gives Senior Center More Room to Grow

KATHLEEN D. BAILEY
LONDONDERRY TIMES

Kathy Blash, director of the Londonderry Senior Center, moved a barn-type door on its hinges. "Steve Cotton built this for us," she said. "It's made of reclaimed wood from the old kitchen."

The remodeled Londonderry Senior Center reopened in November. With people living longer and staying active longer, the Center is poised to help Londonderry seniors enjoy more activities, with more space to do them in.

Blash said the effort was overseen by Cotton, who saw to every detail and in cases like the door, took care of it himself.

"We needed to close off the other wing for when we rent it out," she said. Cotton saw to the door and went the extra mile, Blash said.

She moved down the hall of the new wing, noting the maroon bumpers built into the cream-colored walls. "Steve brought this in so that when we bring out the extra tables, they won't scrape the paint," she said.

The reno includes a new women's bathroom, handicapped-accessible, with two stalls, self-flushing toilets and a hot-air hand dryer.

The new wing extends out the back of the former Mayflower Grange Hall and has a new foundation and completely new construction, she said. A mechanical room holds the electrical equipment along with a new utility sink, washer and dryer. The Senior Center purchased the appliances with its own funds, Blash said. The group uses cloth tablecloths for its bigger events, and before, she and some members would split the chore of washing them at home. "We'd say, 'I'll take 10, you take 10,'" Blash recalled. Now they can do it on-site and save time.

She shared an office with some other staff members and now has a larger office in the new wing, she said, opening the door on a room that still smelled of new paint. "We are still waiting for the wiring," she said. While Blash has an open-door policy, having her own space will make it easier to work on budgets and other things that require concentration, she said.

There is a separate room for the many health clinics the Center hosts. It has its own sink, good for sanitary reasons, and a door that shuts, good for privacy and HIPPA issues. "When we're not having a clinic, this doubles as our poker room," she said with a smile.

Another room has been designated a game room, with four tables set up for Mah Jongg and other games. It's also the room for "chair exercises," and a large cabinet hides a new flat-screen TV to be used to guide the exercisers.

The facility now has a designated room for craft and art projects, and art instructor Jan McLaughlin was checking the status of some jars of paint. She teaches everything from pastels to acrylics to Christmas crafts, McLaughlin said, and was working on a design for a wine-stopper ornament.

"It is so nice to be able to have space," McLaughlin said of her new digs. "We used to have to wait until after lunch was served to do an art class." Her students could be distracted, she said, with people chattering at the tables behind them or card games going on.

And they could also distract, McLaughlin said. "One time we had a craft that we had to pound with a hammer," she said. "People were behind us doing Tai Chi."

McLaughlin is also happy about designated storage for her craft supplies, she said.

Blash is especially happy about the kitchen, which has doubled in size from the old one. "We gutted this room down to the beams," she said. While the Center kept its stove and two fridges, there are brand-new cabinets and counters, including a center island with two electric warming trays built in. "We used to use a Sterno can," she said, adding, "That's dangerous."

She and her core group moved items back from their temporary home at the Lions Hall in early November, and opened for a full schedule Nov. 7. They're still trying to find things, she said. "We ask each other, 'Where did we put the plastic wrap?'" But it's a good problem to have.

The new kitchen had its inaugural event with the annual Senior Luncheon catered by the Fire Department, Blash said. The firemen were impressed with the changes.

Blash has been working on the Center's physical appearance since she arrived three years ago. The first thing to go were some really ugly curtains, and Center member Virginia

Enos sewed new ones.

The seniors love the new space, Blash said. "Our membership has grown. Everyone is so happy with it."

In the addition, tall 16-paned windows let in the light from North Londonderry. "These rooms are bright even on gloomy days," Blash observed. She's hoping that will extend to the seniors she serves.

Londonderry's Littlest Students Express Thanks at Feast

KATHLEEN D. BAILEY
LONDONDERRY TIMES

Arrianna, a kindergarten student at Londonderry's Moose Hill, was very specific about what she's thankful for this Thanksgiving. "My unicorn stuffed animal," she said around a mouthful of popcorn.

The four kindergarten classes at Moose Hill got a jump on the holiday Tuesday, Nov. 22, when they held their annual Thanksgiving Feast at the school. Using placemats they designed and food they helped prepare, the little ones gave a kids'-eye view of gratitude.

The four kindergarten teachers, Barbara Curro, Laura Brulet, Stephanie Wright and Sarah Keller, set up long tables in the hallway outside their classrooms. Stuffed turkeys and toy Pilgrims and Indians served as centerpieces. The children filed in from their classrooms, each wearing a paper Pilgrim hat or Native American headband. They sat in front of their own placemats, which had been laminated.

The menu included quick breads that the children helped bake, butter they helped churn, popcorn, fresh cut vegetables and slivers of pumpkin pie along with the kindergarten staple of a juice box.

Administrator Bonnie Breithaupt said the school has been holding the Feast since it opened in 2001.

Many of the placemats proclaimed that the child was thankful for their family, and most of the children drew stick figures of their loved ones. Others expressed thanks for friends, sunny days, their teacher, their dog, jewelry, toys and Santa. The children sang a song, "We Are Thankful," before diving in to their plates of goodies.

A girl named Rishika said she was thankful for her family in India, and that she expected to call them for Thanksgiving. "We always call them," she said.

"We went there once."

Rishika said she wouldn't like to have been a Pilgrim because "they didn't have any stores." But she admired them because "they built their houses by themselves."

A boy named Joey wore a macaroni necklace along with his Indian headband. He said he was thankful for his family. He's an only child, he said, "But I have a dog."

Joey remembered one fact about the Pilgrims: "They shoed the birds away from their food."

And he said he would like to have been one, for the inexplicable reason that "They can do stuff humans can't do."

His friend Mason said he was thankful for his baby brother.

A girl named Violet wore a Pilgrim ladies' bonnet and munched carrots as she said, "I remember that they had a storm on a boat." Her luncheon companion, a girl named Callee, said, "They had a baby boy on the Mayflower. I would like to be a Pilgrim because they're really nice," she added.

"It was a stormy trip," Jordyn, another girl at their table, said. She said she liked the Indians best, "Just because."

The children had visitors from another century. Teacher Sarah Keller's parents, Bill and Judy Imes of Massachusetts, dressed up as Elder William Brewster and his wife, Goodwife Brewster. Bill Imes has been doing it since Keller herself was in kindergarten, and Judy Imes joined him later. They circulated among the delighted children, shaking hands and wishing them a Happy Thanksgiving.

Scotsman Wins, But Local Runners Excel in Turkey Trot

Aidan Gilbride of East Kilbride, Scotland took first place in this year's 43rd annual GDTC Turkey Trot 5K.

Morgan Nault, a 13-year-old Manchester resident, was the first female to cross the finish line in the race.

CHRIS PANTAZIS
LONDONDERRY TIMES

Every autumn, folks from all over take part in the annual Greater Derry Track Club (GDTC) Turkey Trot around Beaver Lake in Derry.

That was the case once again last Thursday, Nov. 24 - Thanksgiving morning - when the 43rd annual GDTC Turkey Trot 5K Road Race was won by a teen-aged runner hailing from Scotland. But locals from both Derry and Londonderry also excelled in the popular holiday event, that boasted a total of 1,165 finishers this time around.

Eighteen-year-old Aidan Gilbride, who hails from East Kilbride, Scotland but is also presently a freshman running star at Franklin Pierce University in Rindge, N.H., won the race in a time of 15 minutes and 28 seconds. But he was followed extremely closely by the second through fourth finishers, who all crossed the finish line over the next 11 seconds.

Sam Gagnon of Dover was the runner-up, crossing the line a mere four seconds after champion Gilbride. Chester resident and Pinkerton Academy graduate Jeff Reddy took third place in 15:38 - just six seconds after Gagnon crossed - and 23-year-old Kevin McMahon of Derry crossed the line just one second after Reddy did.

Manchester 13-year-old Morgan Nault was the first female finisher, placing 27th overall in 19:51. This was the second time running the race, and last year she was the third-place female runner.

But runners from both Derry and Londonderry were omnipresent where the final results were concerned.

Of the top 23 finishers, 12 were either from Derry or Londonderry, and nine runners from the two towns won their respective age groups' titles.

All in all, some 454 racers from Derry and 154 from Londonderry crossed the finish line. Runners from all of the six New England states as well as Virginia, Georgia, New York, Pennsylvania, California, Utah, Minnesota, North Carolina, Wisconsin, Illinois, New Jersey, and Ohio took part in the annual race.

"It was an awesome day and a great turnout," said race director Sean Coyle. "We had some fast times and it looked like everyone had fun."

The top male and female finishers from both Derry and Londonderry win awards each year, and this time around the Derry recipients were the aforementioned Kevin McMahon and Pinkerton Academy soccer star Britney Johnson, a 16-year-old who finished 34th overall in 20:19. She was the second female finisher overall.

The first two finishers from Londonderry were 18-year-old Josh Wasserman (11th overall in 18:17) and present Londonderry High junior running standout Kalin Gregoire (37th overall, 20:26). She was the fourth female finisher of the race.

Where age division winners were concerned, there were five from Derry including McMahon in the men's 20-29 class, Rich Moran in the guys' 30-39 division (18:36), Shawn Gile in the males' 40-49 grouping (20:12), Rich DiSalvo in the mens' 50-59 class (18:32), and GDTC president Jim Peters in the men's 60-69 division (22:39).

Londonderry division winners included Matt Griffin in the boys' 1-14 grouping (18:40), Caitlin Boufford in the girls' 1-14 class (22:06), Gregoire in the girls' 15-19 grouping, and 73-year-old John Loker in the men's 70-79-year-old division (29:15).

Soccer Duo Wheeler and West Collect All-State Honors

CHRIS PANTAZIS
LONDONDERRY TIMES

The Londonderry High School varsity boys' soccer squad's 2016 season was quite a roller-coaster ride for the Lancers. But after making an early exit from the Division I tournament, the local booters ended up with several reasons for celebration during the post-season period.

LHS senior goalie Cam Wheeler and senior midfielder Jayden West both received Division I All-State Honorable Mention recognition from that league's coaches for their noteworthy and important contributions to their 8-8-1 contingent's up-and-down campaign.

The Londonderry High crew had posted a 2-2 record through its first five matches, but it was a very solid 5-2-1 through eight contests.

However, the LHS squad then dropped four consecutive decisions to Salem, Timberlane of Plaistow, Bedford, and Manchester Central in falling below the .500 mark to 5-6-1. Timberlane, Bedford, and Central all ended up being top-five finishers in Division I.

Londonderry then bounced back to the .500 mark with a defeat of the Dover High Green Wave, but a tough 1-0 loss to the Keene High Blackbirds dropped the Lancers to 6-7-1 with their fifth loss in six matches.

But future all-staters Wheeler and West and their teammates defeated Manchester Memorial and Nashua North in their last two regular season matches to finish up at 8-7-1.

That record got the Londonderry High legion the number eight seed in the Division I tournament, but the Lancers weren't involved in the tourney for long as they lost a 3-1 opening-round decision to a ninth-seeded Memorial Crusaders - who Londonderry had bested Concord High Crimson Tide by 1-0 days earlier - which wound up looking like the Cinderella team of 2016.

The Memorial Crusaders went on to upset both number one Bedford and the fourth-ranked Concord High Crimson Tide by 1-0 scores in the quarterfinals and semifinals respectively before getting hammered by sixth-ranked Exeter by a 5-0 score in the state finals.

Despite the early end to the challenging 2016 campaign, the honors received by standouts Wheeler and West following the season gave the LHS Lancers reasons to be proud.

Former LHS Hoop Star Simpson Aiming to Help Wildcats Succeed

CHRIS PANTAZIS
LONDONDERRY TIMES

Anybody who witnessed 2014 Londonderry High School graduate Aliza Simpson's truly stellar four-year basketball and soccer careers at the local school can attest to the fact that she was a singularly talented athlete with the kind of drive which inevitably leads a player and their team to success.

The hard-nosed guard with truly incredible court sense helped her Lady Lancer girls' basketball squads to state title games in 2010-11, 2011-12, and her senior year of 2013-14. Londonderry lost to Winnacunnet of Hampton that first year and to Bishop Guertin of Nashua the second, but Simpson overcame injuries to lead the LHS cagers to the 2013-14 state crown with a nipping of Bedford, and the University of New Hampshire women's hoop program was absolutely overjoyed to keep Simpson in the Granite State when she decided that she'd play her collegiate basketball in Durham.

Nearly three years on, junior collegiate cager Aliza Simpson's aim is to help the UNH Lady Wildcats try to hit the heights in America East after making significant contributions to the Lady Wildcats' 17-12 campaign under veteran coach Maureen Magarity during the winter campaign of 2015-16.

Simpson and her UNH lady cagers were picked to finish a rather modest sixth in the America East Conference in that league's coaches' pre-season poll released recently. And they'd love to prove the poll wrong.

There are nine teams in that highly-competitive conference, and the Lady Wildcats enjoyed a pretty decent start to the 2016-17 conference campaign by going 3-2 through their first five contests, winning all three of their home games and losing twice on the road.

The University of Hartford (4-2) and UNH were the only two of the nine squads in the division to post records which were over .500 heading into this week.

The defending conference champs from the University of Albany were picked to finish first in that poll, with the University of Maryland-Baltimore Country second and Maine third.

In her squad's first five games of the season - all of which she started - LHS grad Simpson showed her usual all-around abilities by scoring, rebounding, and dishing out assists pretty impressively.

The junior guard netted nine points, hauled down eight rebounds, dealt out four assists, and snagged a steal in the Lady Wildcats' season-opening loss to Cornell in Ithaca, N.Y. on Nov. 11.

In about half that much court time in her team's home-opener against New England College of HENRIKER three days later, Simpson was good for eight points, four rebounds, two assists, and two steals in a 58-38 blowout win.

The former Lady Lancer multi-sport star and her teammates then subsequently lost big to the University of Kentucky in Lexington but bagged home wins over Bryant University and Wagner College to start the season at 3-2.

During the aforementioned 2015-16 campaign last winter, Simpson started 27 of the Lady Wildcats' 29 contests, averaging 26.5 minutes per contest, which was second on the squad.

The talented guard also finished second on the team in total assists (72) and assist-per-game average (2.5), and she was fourth in three-point shooting percentage (.257). Simpson placed 10th overall in all of America East with her assists-per-game average, and she recorded season-highs of 12 points in games against both Boston University and Boston College.

During her stellar high school basketball career, Simpson was named Miss New Hampshire Hoop, the New Hampshire Gatorade Player of the Year, and the New Hampshire Interscholastic Athletic Association Player of the Year for the 2013-14 season, and she is a member of the LHS 1,000-point club and the all-time assist leader for the girls' hoop program.

Cage Fight Victory

Former Lancer wrestler Jon Paul climbed into the octagon on Saturday, Nov. 19 and came away with his first Mixed Martial Arts (MMA) victory as an amateur fighter during the Combat Zone 60 at the Radisson in Manchester. He currently trains at Gate City MMA of Nashua. His competitor was Dan Ward of Spero's MMA of Plaistow.

LONDONDERRY TIMES

After enjoying an exceptional senior Division I high school football season during the fall of 2014, Londonderry High star quarterback Eric Fairweather found himself unexpectedly under center lots as a freshman for the Saint Anselm College Hawks the next autumn.

And the quick and crafty signal-caller did himself proud for a Saint A's team which - after losing multiple quarterbacks to injuries - desperately needed him to step up.

But after that notable 2015 success, Fairweather was sidelined himself by a severe ankle injury right at the start of his promising 2016 campaign.

"Eric broke his ankle in the first game of the year, in his first (offensive) series," said LHS football coach and Fairweather-follower Jimmy Lauzon. "He never came back, and he's still rehabilitating it."

The initial plan for the 2016 Saint Anselm Hawk gridder was for Fairweather to share playing time at quarterback with senior signal-caller and team captain Yianni Gavalas. But after his injury, Fairweather was forced to sit back and watch Gavalas and the Hawks face challenges and take some serious lumps under new coach Joe Adam.

The former Lancer star - who swept up nearly every New Hampshire high school football award there was to win following his glittering senior campaign of 2014 - now looks toward a 2017 campaign for which he might have to take red-shirt status to preserve a year of playing eligibility while still working on the ankle.

However, there are plenty of folks around the Hawks who saw Fairweather - pressed into action as a freshman last fall - excel in numerous areas at quarterback and earn 2015 Northeast-10 Conference All-Rookie Team honors who know what he's been capable of on a football field.

Fairweather appeared in eight games for those 2015 Hawks, starting the final seven of the season and going 112-for-187 for 1,058 yards passing. He posted a 59.9% completion percentage and tossed seven touchdowns. The fleet-footed athlete also rushed 107 times for 716 yards and eight scores. He went 26-of-40 for 299 yards and two touchdowns while rushing 13 times for 55 yards and another score against New Haven, and Fairweather posted three 100-yard rushing games including a career-high 18 rushes for 177 yards and a touchdown against Stonehill.

The 2014 LHS graduate also won numerous academic awards following the fall campaign of 2015, being named to the Saint Anselm Fall Dean's List, the Northeast-10 Fall Commissioner's Honor Roll, then the Saint Anselm Spring Dean's List and the Northeast-10 Conference Spring Commissioner's Honor Roll.

With the Hawks having gone a dismal 2-9 overall and 2-7 in their conference under their new coach this past autumn, if Fairweather elects to play next fall he'll find himself among a quartet of Saint

A's quarterbacks who saw precious little playing time behind departing starter Gavalas. Among them are junior Crosby Winters, sophomore Johnny Aylward, and freshman Tom Walsh. But there's no doubt that Fairweather's strong play during the fall of 2015 gives him the confidence to know that he can accomplish quite a bit in collegiate football with the 2017 campaign potentially in mind.

And Lancer fans will remember that Fairweather rebounded from a 2013 injury with his 2014 season, so the speedy standout has been in his present circumstances before.

Former Lancer Gridder Griffin Having a Career Season in the NFL

CHRIS PANTAZIS
LONDONDERRY TIMES

When the Houston Texans handed the keys to their offense to big money free agent-signee Brock Osweiler during the off-season between the 2015 and 2016 seasons, they hoped that the big quarterback would be able to create some pyrotechnics with his impressive passing abilities.

And with the help of prolific wide receiver DeAndre Hopkins and a sticky-fingered trio of tight ends - including former Londonderry High School football standout Ryan Griffin - Osweiler has gotten plenty done with the passing game through the National Football League squad's first 10 games of 2016.

Griffin, who starred at the University of Connecticut after graduating from LHS, is presently having a career season for the Texas team where production is concerned. The 6'6", 265-pound tight end had 30 receptions for 253 yards and one touchdown through the 6-4 Texans' first 10 contests, and those personal numbers easily surpassed Griffin's season high numbers in his first three pro campaigns with plenty of contests and reception opportunities still remaining.

Between Griffin's 30 catches, 35 from C.J. Fiedorowicz, and nine from Stephen Anderson, the three Texans' tight ends have a pretty stunning 74 receptions for more than 700 yards and five scores.

Twenty-six-year-old Griffin was a sixth-round draft choice of the Texans out of U-Conn in 2013.

His previous offensive highs of 20 catches, 251 yards, and two touchdowns came during the 2015 season, which due to injuries consisted of just nine games for Griffin.

In tallying his new offensive highs of 30 grabs and 253 yards this year, Griffin enjoyed his top individual performance on national television during week three in Foxboro, Mass. in front of friends and family in a losing effort against the host New England Patriots.

The big tight end had no less than eight catches for 52 yards in that contest, and he had at least one grab in each of the Texans' first 10 contests of 2016.

Griffin had three catches in consecutive contests against the Detroit Lions, Jacksonville Jaguars, and Oakland Raiders in Houston's eighth, ninth, and 10th games of the campaign, and he scored his first touchdown of the season in the Jacksonville game.

Wreaths and Trees and Santa On The Town Common

KATHLEEN D. BAILEY
LONDONDERRY TIMES

Londonderry Rotary member Faye Sell is always amused to see the children at Christmas On the Common. "They have chocolate rings around their mouths," she said of the kids who indulge in the free hot chocolate. "They come back to us and say, 'More marshmallows, please?"

The annual Christmas On the Common sponsored by the Londonderry Rotary Club will be held Sunday, Dec. 4, on the Town Common.

Sell said in a phone interview that the observance has been going on for at least 25 years.

The fun begins at 3 p.m., when refreshments are offered and families invited to stroll the Common. Hot cider, cocoa, chili and cookies will be served. Residents and their guests are invited to stroll among the trees decorated by community groups and the wreaths decorated by local businesses. Santa, Mrs. Claus and an elf will arrive at 4 p.m. on a Londonderry fire truck, and at 4:30 kids can pose for pictures and make their requests known. Scout groups lead the crowd in songs of the season, and a high school choral group is also expected to perform.

The 20 undecorated trees are provided by Shady Hill Nurseries and decorated by Scout troops, church youth groups and other nonprofits.

The Wreath Stroll is relatively new, according to Sell. The Rotary pioneered it two years ago, she said. How it works: "We buy the wreaths, and then we go to local businesses and ask them to decorate them. People bid on the wreaths and the highest bidder gets to take it home." The funds raised go to local charities, she said.

Despite the cold, the atmosphere on the Common is "spiritual and joy-

Local girl scout troops will be decorating some of the trees set up on the common. Photos by Chris Paul ous," Sell said. She enjoys seeing the children run around, with their red cheeks.

"The kids love the fire engine," she said.

Since everything on the Common is free, it's a great afternoon out for "families that don't have much," Sell added.

It's also good for people who are wondering what Londonderry is all about. "They come up to us and say, 'Thank you, I'm new in town,'" she observed.

The event draws up to 150 people, and they come "in rain or shine, in the snow," she said.

"It gets people in the Christmas spirit," she said.

Mr. and Mrs. Claus will be on the Town Common Sunday Dec. 4.

- PROVIDER ON CALL - IS IT STRESS OR AN ADJUSTMENT DISORDER

There are many definitions of stress. A good way to think about stress is that it is a feeling that may occur in response to positive or negative situations in which your body's natural response, biological and psychological, is to be in a heightened state of readiness, allowing you to perform well under pressure.

People can experience stress in different degrees, from mild to severe. "Just enough" stress can be a good thing and indeed critical to survival. However, when this stress response fails to switch off and reset itself after a challenging situation has passed, or if it worsens to the point of distraction, it can lead to more significant psychological problems and even worsen some medical conditions. That is the point at which an adjustment disorder or more severe problems can develop.

An adjustment disorder is a severe emotional reaction to a stressful event that has occurred in your life such as the death of a loved one or being diagnosed with a disease. It is a type of stress-related mental illness that can affect your feelings, thoughts and behaviors. Adjustment disorders are characterized by:

- Having emotional or behavioral symptoms within three months of a specific stressor occurring in your life
- Having serious symptoms involving severe distress or an inability to function well in your daily life

People may experience depressed mood, anxiety, disruptive behavior or other problems. Generally, there is an improvement within six months of the stressful event coming to an end. Taking good care of your emotional needs, talking to a trusted friend or family member, and avoiding isolation are important in recovery. If symptoms persist, it may be helpful to talk to your doctor about what treatment options may be right for you.

As a Family Practitioner for over 20 years in Southern New Hampshire, I have treated new borns to individuals in their Golden Years. My staff and I believe that prevention is the best cure. And we like to do it the old-fashioned way, by listening and caring for each patient as if they were our own family. At the same time, we do not ignore the innovations that are taking place in medicine and participate in the EPIC electronic medical records in conjunction with the Elliot Hospital.

Our practice is located at the Tower Hill Professional Park at 182 Rockingham Road, Suite 9, Londonderry, conveniently accessible near Exit 5 of Interstate 93. We accept most major insurances. If you are looking for a Family Friendly Environment, we can be reached at (603) 434-4363.

READERS ARE CAUTIONED that we occasionally run ads that require an initial investment or money in advance. We urge our readers to "do their homework" before responding to any ad, check out the advertiser thoroughly and verify their claims to your total satisfaction. Only then should you proceed at your own risk. We try to screen ads that require you to send money before receiving a product or service. But these efforts are no substitute for your own investigation, and we don't endorse or guarantee any claims made in any of the ads we publish. If you want more information about claims made in ads on subjects such as work at home opportunities, travel or vacation specials, purchasing land or vehicles from government surplus or below wholesale, loans or other credit opportunities (including credit repair), or weight loss and other health products and services, we urge you to contact the Office of Attorney General, Consumer Protection Bureau, 33 Capitol Street, Concord, NH 03301 (603-271-3641) or the Better Business Bureau at 603-224-1991. Publisher is not responsible for any loss of business if an ad does not run, and we reserve the right to revoke any ad if deemed necessary. No refunds will be given for prepaid ads.
