Perkins Road Resident Denied Auto Sales Request

ALEX MALM
LONDONDERRY TIMES

During the May 17 Zoning Board of Adjustment meeting, the board heard a variance request to allow online retail vehicle sales and storage for a home occupation at 27 Perkins Road.

It was noted by Assistant Town Manager, Kellie Caron, that they needed to get a variance since they didn't meet the criteria for a home occupation.

Owner, Donald Belisle, explained he was looking to be able to do online sales in the garage in the front of the property, which was used as a commercial building for a number of years.

The other presenter, Beth Murch, said she was looking to get a dealers license and to do so they need to have a place where cars can be stored and that the property fit the bill.

Town Council Approve Road Work & Elderly Tax Exemption

ALEX MALM
LONDONDERRY TIMES

One of the agenda items during the May 15 Town Council meeting was in regards to a request to spend money from the Roadway Maintenance Trust Fund.

Director of Engineering and Environmental Services, John Trotter, explained that in April they put out a bid for improvements to the Grenier Field Road signal.

"It's the brains of any signalized intersection," said Trottier.

He explained that it was installed in 2001 and was put in just prior to all the roadway improvements near the airport.

Trottier said it was constructed and paid for by the airport.

"It was a backup cabinet that they had," Trottier said.

Trottier stated that they got nearly 25 years out of use from it.

"It's just time," Trottier said.

Trottier said they received bids from three different vendors ranging in prices from around $31,000 to $78,000.

Trottier said they were looking to issue the bid to East Coast Signals, which was the lowest bidder. He added that they were looking for $35,000 in case of contingencies in case of any overruns.

"So 10% for contingencies basically," Town Councilor, Ted Combes, said.

Councilor Butler Expresses Frustration Over Criticism

CHRIS PAUL
LONDONDERRY TIMES

Directly following Public Comment at the Monday, May 15, Town Council meeting, Councilor, Jim Butler, interjected some thoughts he had on the public scrutiny he and his fellow board members have been experiencing in recent months.

Most of his comments were directed at resident, Jonathan Esposito, and some were focused on former councilor and Londonderry Times Publisher, Deb Paul.

Esposito was in the audience that evening and two of Butler's sons, Jake and Tom, stationed themselves on each side of him.

He began by saying that the public has every right to make 91-A requests, and asked when does it become abusive.

Butler said, "When you're constantly badgered, there comes a time when you just have to let it out."

He then referred to a number of emails he's received saying that this is what he's had to deal with.

The first email from Esposito stated that he would be acting as the town's watch dog.

It read "It is not enough to avoid overt bad faith actions. As someone who used to advise clinicians on the ethicality of their decisions, let me tell you; one must avoid "even the appearance thereunto" of poor ethical conduct, something this most recent session of the council has not done.

This pressure on the council over bad faith decisions isn't going away. There is a shadow over Town Council, one that hopefully some new blood will serve to dispel.

Hooksett Middle School Students Allowed To Play Football at LMS

ALEX MALM
LONDONDERRY TIMES

Hooksett Middle School students will be allowed to participate on the Londonderry Middle School Football team after the School Board approved the proposal during the May 9 meeting.

It was explained by Superintendent, Dan Black, that since Hooksett doesn't have a youth football program they go to different towns to play.

Athletic Director, James Lauzon, said that students from Hooksett used to go to Londonderry before they became a middle school team instead.

"If Hooksett offered the opportunity for their students to play for a football program within their town, I would not ask for this request," Lauzon said. "However, with no option to play in Hooksett or for their school, LMS football is a practical option for their students. The connection between the two towns exists because of the kids that already play in the Londonderry Youth program. This would be an easy transition for those student-athletes."

Lauzon said he was proposing to allow students from Cawley Middle School in Hooksett to begin playing on the Londonderry team starting in the fall.

"The LMS teams become the entry level for football in the school district and will be provided with the same equipment, field space, qualified coaching, and oversight relative to their level," Lauzon said. "I am requesting that beginning for the Fall of 2023 the Londonderry School District allow 7th and 8th grade students from Cawley Middle School in Hooksett to play on the LMS middle school football team."

Black said that he was in support of the agreement noting that Lauzon looked at any potential issues.

"We know this would not be an issue with the Tri County or NHIAA because our middle school football team functions more like a 'club sport' in their eyes, and it is very normal for students from other towns to join other town club sports to participate," Black said in a school board memo. "We are not intending on having this arrangement with other towns because they have their own middle school club football teams for students to participate."

We will be charging a fee for the Hooksett students to participate if they choose to.

Black and Lauzon

reiterated that since football is a no cut sport it wouldn't impact any Londonderry students from playing.

"If space does become an issue in the future, we would use the guidance of the JEC policy to just not allow participation from Hooksett if we had to," Black said.

It was noted by Black that they would also be charging a fee for the Hooksett students for the cost of equipment.

No one from the School Board had any objections to the proposal.

School Board Get Updated on Funding Dining Services

ALEX MALM
LONDONDERRY TIMES

The School Board received an update regarding the financial shape of dining services during their May 9 meeting.

It was explained by Director of Dining Services, Krystle Connell, that they started the year with a fund balance of $829,000 and said they expect to add between $50,000 to $100,000.

"Dining Services operates in a separate fund and is accounted for outside of the District's General Fund," said in a memo to the School Board. "It is a federally funded program, which has a separate warrant article annually and is voted on by the town to accept the funds."

Connell said the main reason for having a higher fund balance is because all students across the country were eligible for free and reduced lunch, which came with higher reimbursement rates than what they charge for lunch.

"FY23 returned to normal operations after two years of the National School Lunch Program and School Breakfast Program being offered to all students at no cost. The District was reimbursed by the State for all meals served," Connell said. "The State reimburses at a higher rate than the District would have charged, which accounted for the significant fund balance last year. Being free, the participation rate was much higher and the reimbursement rate was also higher."

It was explained by Connell that the NH Department of Education told the school district that the fund balance is "higher than allowed," and that they have submitted a plan to reduce it.

"We have submitted to the State a plan to upgrade some equipment, five dishwashers in all locations, a refrigerator at the High School, and one three door freezer at the High School," Connell said.

Connell told the School Board they were proposing to keep lunch and breakfast prices the same next year.

"Moving into FY23, we had a lot of uncertainty with high pricing due to inflation and supply chain issues," Connell said. "We did implement a 55 cent increase to cover these increased expenses. As we are looking to FY23 year end, we are comfortable with leaving prices level for the next school year."

Connell said that the district falls a little bit on the "high side," when it comes to the meal costs, but said other districts will likely be raising their costs this year.

In terms of free and reduced numbers, right now 316 students qualified for free lunch and breakfasts, 77 qualified for reduced breakfast and lunch, and 125 students were denied.

The state reimbursement is $2.29 for free breakfast, $2.26 for reduced, and $.53 for paid breakfasts. For free lunches they get $4.41, $4.01 for reduced lunches, and $.85 for paid lunches.

"The state reimbursements are at a higher rate than our prices are," Business Administrator, Lisa McKenney, said.

Board Finalizes Lease For North School Temporary Classroom

ALEX MALM
LONDONDERRY TIMES

The School District will officially be moving forward with temporary classroom space at North School after the School Board voted unanimously to execute the lease agreement.

Business Administrator, Lisa McKenney, said it is expected to be shipped in July.

"We are expecting shipment hopefully at the end of July, but it could potentially be the beginning of August so they'll have a short time frame to get everything ready and we're hopeful everything will fall into place," McKenney said.

McKenney said that the price is slightly higher than what they originally thought because they have to relocate the doors from the side over to the end to get the exits away from the driveway.

"It's a couple thousand more than what we spoke about," McKenney said.

McKenney said they would be putting $30,000 towards it as a downpayment, which is included in the 2024 budget. She added that the total purchase price is $165,750, and the finance amount is $135,750 with an interest rate of 5.99% with a total lease of seven years. The annual payment will be $24,512.39.

"We'll own this at the end of seven years," McKenney said.

Also during the meeting, the School Board received an update regarding the third party special education review.

Earlier this year the School Board agreed to move forward with having a third party review of the different programs the district has for special education.

It was explained by Superintendent, Dan Black, he received a scope of work proposal from the West Ed Group about how they approach program reviews. He added that the review is similar to the one offered by the Public Consultant Group, which was discussed at the previous meeting.

Black told the board that he was told the review program usually costs around $40,000 to $60,000.

"From what I am seeing right now, we have two great options in terms of nationally recognized and highly capable organizations that have a clear and thorough process for Special Education Program reviews," Black told the School Board.

Black said the plan is to review the proposals over the next couple of weeks and work with the Administration to "vet the organizations and proposals a little more clearly and then present both options to the School Board later this Spring so that hopefully we have a clear path ahead of us this summer."

It was reiterated by Black that the study is not funded in the upcoming budget and the School District doesn't have the "ability to cover such a large cost with a lean budget."

He said he was proposing to use fund balance from the end of the year to cover the costs of it, but they would have to have a public hearing to make the withdrawals at some point.

School Board Chair, Bob Slater, said he thought it made the most sense to use the fund balance for it, noting the unpredictability of the budget at the beginning of the cycle.

"I think that would be my recommendation," Black said.

Black said if they were to move forward with the process it would likely begin in August and go until about December.

Editorial

An Unsettling Trend

In the spirit of remembering those who fought to defend the liberties our nation was founded upon, this paper would like to comment on an unsettling trend at our Londonderry Town Council meetings.

While citizens who speak during public comment have a time limit and rules restricting speech, Members of the Council have free rein for their remarks. There is a pattern in which Council members wait until public comment is closed, and then have the last word by speaking as long as they want.

A review of the last several Town Council meetings will show citizens respectfully asking the Council Chair if public comment is reopened, requesting an opportunity to answer, only to be swiftly and angrily gaveled down by Chairman Farrell.

The Londonderry Times has always attempted to balance fairness and decency with the right of the average citizen to speak about community issues. These public meetings are now devoting time to attacking private citizens saying they are defending themselves.

Sorry, but if you are an elected town official, that's part of the job. Any elected official governing in good faith should be able to defend any position they have taken, and should be willing to freely accept criticism whether they feel it is warranted or not. Such criticism is the bedrock of our Democracy.

It should be noted that not every Council Member approves of this public dragging of citizens; during the most recent Council meeting, one councilor attempted to raise a point of order, but was swiftly gaveled down by the Chairman. A private citizen raised a point of order, also to be gaveled down.

According to the New Hampshire Municipal Association's guidebook on Right-To-Know and effective public meetings, "the viewpoint of a public speaker may not be restricted." They must accept the negative with the positive. Criticism of public officials can't be stifled, and expression of both sides of an issue must be permitted.

Councilors making comments after public comment is closed allows them to effectively control the narrative by refusing to engage in two-way dialogue with citizens. This stifling of public dialogue leaves citizens with little choice but to write emails, Letters to the Editor, and file 91A right to Know Requests to obtain basic information.

Another concerning trend is attempts by the Town Manager to criticize citizens who request information under 91A, NH's "Right-To-Know" law. While the Town Manager and Council present a one-sided picture of citizens "wasting" resources, they fail to explain why the Town repeatedly refuses to release documents in the first place. Citizens who have taken Councilor Butler up on his invitation to "just ask!" find their queries unanswered. This is not just a 91-A issue...it is a Freedom of Speech issue. Our Nation's first president, George Washington, once said, "If the freedom of speech is taken away, then dumb and silent we may be led, like sheep to the slaughter."

2023 Antiques Appraisal Day!

To the editor,
After a long hiatus during the Covid years, it's back!

The Londonderry Historical Society is thrilled to announce our 2023 Antiques Appraisal Day will be held on Sunday, June 11, in the Parmenter Barn on the grounds of the Londonderry Historical Society's Morrison House Museum at 140 Pillsbury Road.

We're gearing up for another great afternoon featuring your antiques, collectibles & family treasures at this event featuring Daniel F. Reidy, appraiser/antiques dealer/auctioneer. Reidy has over 35 years experience and is the owner of Discerning Eye, an estate appraisal and disposition planning business based in Warner, NH.

The event runs from 1 - 3 p.m., with doors opening at 12:30 p.m. to begin pre-registering all items to be appraised. Appraisals are $10 per item, 3 for $25. Any types of items can be evaluated but for extremely large ones, clear photographs can be provided. A dolly and hand truck will be available for transferring items on site.

We had such a great time learning about all the interesting items everyone brought in the past, that we're really looking forward to seeing what you bring in this year! That towering German carved bear hall tree, the beautiful historic porcelain brooch, that "What-is-it?" that kept us guessing, and so many other items elicited Oh's and Ah's and even some laughs along the way for a really enjoyable afternoon. So we hope you'll join us for our 2023 Antiques Appraisal Day, a fundraiser for the Londonderry Historical Society.

We'll have refreshments for you to enjoy while you're here.

Start gathering your finds for Sunday, June 11!

Need Oversight of Classified Documents

To the editor,
The Massachusetts Air National Guardsman who posted highly classified documents on social media should not have received a top secret security clearance based on his terrible background. He discussed violence and murder and use of an assassination van on social media. He also looked up mass shootings and government standoffs on his government computer. He was suspended from high school for discussing use of Molotov cocktails and other weapons; and making racial threats.

Why didn't an FBI background check, which is required for high level security clearances, expose his past and disqualify him for the security clearance?

My wife and I held top secret security clearances back in the 1960s, and our background was thoroughly checked by the FBI. Neighbors, classmates in school, teachers and employers were interviewed before we received our clearances.

We have to tighten up the system for obtaining security clearances; and disseminate classified information on a need to know basis. We need a federal office responsible for the oversight of the dissemination of national security documents. When I was on a Navy staff back in the 1960s we had a top secret control officer responsible for the control of all top secret documents.

Donald Moskowitz
Londonderry

Who is he?

To the editor,
One's religion should always be a private matter. However, mixing it with politics opens a "Pandora's Box" subject to Public opinions. Joe Biden professes to be a Catholic. Pope Frances reminds us that "Our defense of the innocent unborn needs to be clear, firm and passionate, for at stake is the dignity of a human life, which is always sacred and demands love for each person, regardless of his or her stage of development". Can it be said any clearer to Catholics? I am a Catholic. I understand. Joe Biden professes to be a Catholic but doesn't understand. Many have written about Joe's failures over and over. Seldom have I seen mention of abortion. A question for Joe. Can you be a Catholic and also a believer of abortion? If you're puzzled for an answer, forward the question to Rome for help! Furthermore, crossing yourself in Public demonstrates your hypocrisy.

Planning Board Approve Subdivision Plan For High Range Road

ALEX MALM
LONDONDERRY TIMES

The Planning Board reviewed an application for formal review of a subdivision plan during its May 10 meeting.

It was explained by Doug MacGuire, who was representing the owner Belize Real Estate Holding, that they were looking to subdivide one residential lot into three separate lots at 86 High Range Road.

"It's a fairly straightforward proposal," MacGuire said.

He explained that the property on High Range Road is about 14.6 acres and that it has several hundred feet of existing frontage.

MacGuire said they were looking for a frontage lot only subdivision and they wouldn't be adding any infrastructure or roadway.

He said the existing home on the property would be on a smaller lot and they would be creating two other lots.

While they are proposing to have three lots instead of one, MacGuire said they would only be adding two more houses because they would keep the current home they have now.

"Three lots, but two new construction houses," MacGuire said.

MacGuire stated that they received utility clearances from Comcast and for electric, and they would have water and septic for each of the lots.

In addition, he said they had a drainage study done and to accommodate new potential homes they are going to have a small pond located on the northern lot. He added that they also performed site distance reviews on all three of the lots.

He said they addressed all the comments from the planning department.

"I believe we've addressed all of their outstanding comments," MacGuire said.

Planning Board member, Ann Chiampa, asked about the stonewalls in front of it and asked if they could keep it.

"That's one of the early roads you would like to see some resemblance of it," Chiampa said.

Planning Board Chair, Art Rugg, also noted that it is a historic area.

The Planning Board voted to give it conditional approval during the meeting.

Also during the meeting, Assistant Town Manager, Kellie Caron, told the board that the owners of the project at 15 Rockingham Road are looking for a 60 day extension until July 9 in order to meet the conditions of their approval.

Rugg asked if they think they can finish within the 60 days extension, with Caron saying they are expected to be able to.

The Board unanimously approved the extension request.

The Planning Board is expected to meet again on June 7 at 7 p.m.

Belisle said the garage had been used for business purposes and he was looking to do the same.

"I'm just looking to use that space for extra income," Belisle said.

Murch said they wouldn't have any customers on the property and instead the cars would be either shipped or delivered.

"I just want to be able to get our dealer's license," Murch said.

Murch said they wouldn't have any employees and they would be open for eight hours, five days a week as required by state law to have the dealer license.

Belisle said the only signage on the property would be what is required by law, which could be potentially a window sign.

Murch told the board they would likely only be selling a few at a time and would all be stored inside. When asked about work being done there, it was noted that they would generally be selling sought after vehicles and if anything needed to be done, they would be brought to a mechanic.

"We're basically doing this more or less as a hobby," Belisle said.

Jake Butler spoke in opposition of the variance raising concerns about the current site conditions, including things like dumpsters being on the property currently.

Belisle said he outgrew his business location in Merrimack and is in the process of moving it to Salem. He added that he was supposed to move there April 1, but instead it got pushed back to June 1.

He explained that he was trying to continue his company while he was getting his property in Salem and needed to store his equipment there. He said in the next couple of weeks anything for his Salem business would be moved off the property.

"This has nothing to do with the online sale of automobiles," Belisle said.

Lynn Wiles also spoke during the meeting saying he had zoning concerns.

The board members couldn't come to a consensus on how the property was unique and denied the variance request.

Malaguti Suggests Changes to 91A Request Process

ALEX MALM
LONDONDERRY TIMES

The town of Londonderry currently doesn't charge for 91A requests, but Town Manager, Mike Malaguti, said during the May 15 Town Council meeting that he may propose changing that policy in the future.

"I will tell you based on the volume of requests and the municipal resource I've had to devote I am considering proposing changes to that practice," Malaguti said.

While explaining how many hours some 91A requests take to fill, Malaguti gave a few different examples to the Town Council.

One example Malaguti gave was requests for text messages and emails between himself and Town Council Chair, John Farrell, over the course of about five months. He added that he estimated about spending 12.5 hours, which would be about $781 based on his 40 hour work week and if they sent it to an attorney it would've cost between $3,400 to $5,000 depending on the particular attorney's rate.

Another example was a 91A request for communication from the American Civil Liberties Union and the town regarding the no trespass orders against the Gandias.

Malaguti said they have received positive messages in the past about how they handle 91A requests.

"We have been complimented on it by some of the individuals that have been making these requests in the past," Malaguti said.

In the past year, Malaguti told the Town Council that he estimates he has spent about 151.75 hours on filling 91A requests, which would cost the town about $9,484 based on him working 40 hours a week. He added that it could cost anywhere between $41,000 to $60,000 for legal counsel to do it.

Malaguti reiterated that anyone is allowed to file a 91A request, but said "It's not without cost to the taxpayer."

Farrell said at some point they may need to recoup the money spent on fulfilling the requests.

"At some point it has to come from somewhere" Farrell said.

Town Councilor, Ted Combes, suggested they may want to look at having their attorney handle the request going forward instead of having Malaguti do it, noting the amount of hours he has spent working on them.

Farrell said they could discuss it more in the future and could potentially put it on a future council agenda.

Council

The Town Council approved the funding request.

Also during the meeting, the Town Council heard from Tax Assessor, Steve Hamilton, regarding a proposal to increase the income limits for those who can be eligible to receive the elderly tax exemption.

Hamilton said previously that the current single person maximum income to earn a tax exemption is $40,000 in town, but the CPI adjusted amount is $48,002. The SSI COLA adjusted amount is $48,348.

For a married couple, the current exemption level is $50,300, while it's $59,203 for the CPI amount and $59,606 for the SSI COLA adjustment.

During the May 15 meeting, Hamilton said they were proposing to increase the limits to $48,400 for a single person or a widow and to $59,600 for married couples.

"That's what I brought forward," Hamilton said.

In addition to the income limits, Hamilton also proposed increasing the asset limits. Hamilton said previously that the asset limit in town is $137,000 compared to the CPI adjusted amount of $161,249 and $162,345 for the SSI COLA adjustment.

He proposed changing the asset limit to $162,300, excluding the residence.

The Town Council ultimately approved the increases.

The next Town Council meeting is slated to take place on June 5 at 7 p.m.

District Gets Grant Funds For Summer Math Academy

ALEX MALM
LONDONDERRY TIMES

One of the agenda items during the May 9 School Board meeting was in regards to the acceptance of grant funds.

It was explained by Business Administrator, Lisa McKenney, that the district had applied for a grant through the The NH Department of Education.

She explained that the grants were for "before school or summer enrichment programming opportunities for students in K-12 for the 2022-2023 school year and 2023 summer."

"The primary purpose of this grant is to provide students in K-12 with the opportunity to participate in highly engaging, enrichment programming that supports students' social, emotional, and academic needs in a before, after, or summer school setting," McKenney said.

McKenney said they would be using the funds to help students with their math skills.

"This is going to fund our summer math academy," McKenney said.

McKenney told the board that they were awarded a total of $220,428 as part of the grant.

Matthew Thornton will be receiving $60,874, North School will get $60,874, South School will get $60,874, and Londonderry Middle School will get $37,806.

With the grant funds, McKenney said they will be able to use the ESSER funds, which were going to be allocated for the program this year for next year instead.

In other business during the meeting, Superintendent, Dan Black, said that under state and local policies it's unclear if the superintendent is in charge of dismissal hearings for non certified employees.

He said they felt the hearings should be done at the administrative level and then the employee would still be able to appeal to the School Board.

The School Board approved clarifying the language to give the superintendent the authority to hold the hearings and this summer they will be looking at potential policy changes.

Also during the meeting, the School Board approved a number of retirements and resignations.

Retirements included Joan Campo, a teacher at Londonderry Middle School, Lynne Cannon, Support Staff at Moose

Hill, and Anne Marie Govoni, a support staff member at Moose Hill.

For resignations, it included Kristina Mahn a teacher at Matthew Thornton, Maria McCoy, a teacher at South School, Megan McCue, a support staff member at Moose Hill, Rebecca Melia, a support staff member at Moose Hill, Teagan Miller a support staff member at South School, and Joanne Troy a teacher at Londonderry Middle School.

Design Review Process Discussed by Planning Board

ALEX MALM
LONDONDERRY TIMES

Assistant Town Manager, Kellie Caron, and Director of Engineering and Environmental Services, John Trottier, gave a presentation to the Planning Board on May 3 regarding the design review process in town.

It was explained by Caron that the process is non-binding and optional.

"We highly encourage and recommend that the applicant goes through the process," Caron said.

Once they review the application and materials associated with it, Caron said they review it to make sure it has all of the set items and then they are sent to third party reviewers.

She said once they get the estimate of what the third party review will cost, it goes to the planning department to make sure nothing is questionable about the cost.

From there, the applicant receives the estimate and an escrow account is established essentially to fund the third party review.

Caron said once the applicant provides the escrow funds they then begin the 30 day review.

"We can't start the 30 day review until we have the funds in place," Caron said.

Caron said they receive the funds up front because if they don't have the funds from the applicant then the town would be liable for paying for the third party review.

During the review period, Caron said it is sent to the design review committee, which includes the Heritage Commission, Conservation Commission, ZBA, and all municipal departments as well as the third party reviewer.

From there, all of the comments are sent to the planning department. Once they are compiled, Caron stated that it's recommended that the applicant has a meeting with the town.

"They can take as much as much time as they need or don't need before meeting with us," Caron said.

Planning Board member, Lynn Wiles, asked if the boards are held to the same standard as staff is when it comes to the 30 day time frame.

Caron said most of the time during the 30 day time frame there are meetings that occur for all the boards and commissions.

"We schedule the applicants accordingly," Caron said.

Planning Board member, Jake Butler, asked if it's efficient with their process to have the Heritage meeting bi-monthly instead of every month.

It was pointed out by Planning Board Chair, Art Rugg, that they can have a special meeting if requested.

"That hasn't been an issue," Caron said.

Ex-Officio, Giovanni Verani, asked if they could look at getting prices from the third-party reviewers on a more regular basis or considering having estimates from one than one more so the applicant can decide who to go with for the design review.

"We can certainly discuss that internally, what that would look like," Caron said.

Butler asked if they think they should move to having the design review be required. Caron said the statute states that design review is optional.

"The applicant has every right to submit straight to the Planning Board," Caron said.

Sunnycrest Farm Gets Approval for Special Exception

ALEX MALM
LONDONDERRY TIMES

During the May 17 Zoning Board of Adjustment meeting, one of the agenda items was in regards to a special exception request for the farm sale of consumable non-farm products at 55A High Range Road.

Representing the owners were Danny Hicks III and Samantha Fay, who run Sunnycrest Farm.

It was explained by Hicks that they were looking to sell consumable non-farm items at their farm, which would include ice cream.

He explained that it would give them financial support when they have a bad season.

For example, he said this year they aren't going to have peaches or cherries for the most part because of the season and they are trying to think of other ways to bring things to town.

"Sometimes the weather doesn't work in our favor," Hicks said.

Hicks stated that they are looking to have an ice cream room with a patio area, which will be supported by a new septic system they are putting in.

"That money that could be brought in could make the world of difference," Hicks said.

He explained that the plan is to convert one of their storage rooms into the ice cream room and they are looking to have four windows and are looking to expand their current patio for it.

It was noted by Fay that it would be near the cider donut window and they want to add more chairs, windows, tables, and other things in order to have more room for customers. She added that they wouldn't be adding any additional buildings.

Fay said they have porta potties they rent and they wouldn't be adding restrooms.

She said they would be able to separate the flow of traffic by having summer hours for picking apples from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m., while the ice cream stand would be open from noon to 8 p.m.

One question asked was how many employees they have for the store. Fay responded by saying that in season they have about 30. It was also noted that they have about 75 parking spaces for the store area.

Town Councilor, Jim

Butler, spoke during the meeting in support of the special exception, saying he has known the owners for many years and said he thinks they do a good job.

No one spoke in opposition to the special exception request.

The Zoning Board of Adjustment approved the special exception request.

The next ZBA meeting is slated to take place on June 1 at 7 p.m.

SWEC Discuss Teaching Students About Recycling

ALEX MALM
LONDONDERRY TIMES

One of the items of discussion during the May 8 Solid Waste and Environment Committee was in regards to teaching kids about the importance of recycling in schools.

It was explained by committee member, John Mahon, that he thinks they should look at trying to teach students at a young age about recycling and possibly going to the schools to do so.

"I don't know if they get that at all," Mahon said.

It was noted by Vice Chair, Jocelyn Muller, that the state has standards on what needs to be taught about it for each grade saying "It's pretty extensive."

However, Muller noted lessons about recycling aren't necessarily talked about as much and that it could be improved on.

"It could easily be done," Muller said.

Muller said students are willing to recycle.

Mahon gave an example about his granddaughter who is in second grade and when he tried to explain to her about recycling she didn't know much about it.

Mahon said he looks at recycling like wearing a seatbelt. He added that since kids grew up wearing them, they do it right away when they get into the car.

High School Liaison, Sean O'Mara, said it's about repetition and if students were taught about recycling at an early age and continued to do it throughout the upper grades, then it would become second nature.

Mahon said they could have basic recycling lessons for the earlier grades and then advance it throughout the years.

Chair, Lynn Wiles, said they should have a presentation to the School Board and superintendent and explain what they do as a committee and see how they can help with recycling.

"We can't do anything without their buy into it," Wiles said.

Wiles said without data he would be concerned about saying there isn't recycling going on at the schools at all, but they could explain that their liaisons expressed their concerns.

Muller said she thinks they should first talk to facilities to see what their view is on what is happening.

Wiles said the first step in the process would be to talk to the School District Administration to see what they think and to get them on board before moving forward.

Butler

Regardless of the outcome of the election, there will be a new level of scrutiny and a new era of accountability.

And you will have the benevolent hand of Jonathan Esposito to guide you along the way.”

Butler added, “These are the kind of emails we get constantly.”

Esposito then tried to clarify something in the email, but was quickly gaveled down by Chairman, John Farrell.

Another email he referred to was on the subject of how Butler addresses citizens. It stated, “Jim [Joe] Green doubling down on his rudeness tonight and the Council Chair not addressing it is yet again shameful behavior from this council. He is an out of control animal with the way he addresses citizens. Interesting watching Michael Malaguti stumble thru the presentation on the Mack’s lease. Judging from public comment, you people have been making backroom deals again.”

Butler also defended himself from allegations that there were alleged “back room deals” on the recent Mack’s farm land deal. Butler said he had talked to Dan Hicks years ago, but had no idea he would be leasing the town-owned property in the center of town.

Butler also made the assertion that the Londonderry Times editor supports his point of view because the paper ran his letter claiming he was an animal.

The letter he was referring to was searched for, but never found in any recent issues of the Londonderry Times.

Butler then defended the Chairman after a comment made on his use of his cell phone during Town Council meetings, to which Esposito once again tried to comment, but was gaveled down and told there wouldn’t be a third warning.

Butler also commented on Esposito’s “ethics,” and read from an email sent to Farrell from former Lions Club President and recently deceased volunteer, David Steinhauer.

In part, it said that Esposito’s Lions membership was terminated in September of 2022 due to numerous violations of the Lions Club’s Code of Ethics.

Butler then went into Esposito’s position as President of the Londonderry Republicans Committee, to which councilor, Ron Dunn, called for a Point of Order, but was refused.

Butler also made an allegation that Esposito is part of a small “group” of citizens working against the Council, referring to another email he had possession of. The email was sent to Deb Paul, Glenn Douglas, and Kristine Hughes (Perez).

He also made reference to a letter he received from a Londonderry Times reporter, “asking questions” and stated he was aggravated by it.

In response to allegations made about the Londonderry Times involvement with Esposito, Deb Paul said, “As the local newspaper, we are contacted by hundreds of citizens on a regular basis and to suggest I am part of some ‘group’ because I was sent an email is just ludicrous. Butler also referred to my reporter asking him questions. I’m not sure who he was referring to, but that’s what reporters do. Ask questions.”

In response to his comments on Esposito, Esposito said, “I do thank councilor Butler for effectively restating many of the concerns I have sought redress on. To be absolutely clear, I stand by each and every remark entered into the written record that he read off at that evening’s meeting.”

In reference to the Lions termination, Esposito said, “I did get kicked out of the Londonderry Lions for divisive actions, I would not cooperate with their Club ethics by lying to the community about the hall rental revenue. If refusing to lie to the Londonderry taxpayer makes me unethical by Lions International standards, that is a badge I will wear with pride.”

On Butler’s sons sitting next to him at the meeting, he said, “I am greatly amused that the Butler sons both sat with me at the meeting, but neither took the time to introduce themselves. Surely they knew who I am by now, although I confess I did not know either of them. They seem to have no shortage of words when addressing other citizens outside in the hallway, causing a disruption to the meeting in progress.”

Of note, Tom Butler, 38, went out of his way after his father’s comments to accost Deb Paul, 63, outside in the parking lot and threatened her. “I’m coming for you,” also adding a number of expletives.

Paul immediately reported the incident to the police.

Planning Board Discuss Application Completeness During Workshop

ALEX MALM
LONDONDERRY TIMES

During the May 3 Planning Board work session meeting, one of the areas discussed was in regards to applications being complete.

It was explained by Assistant Town Manager, Kellie Caron, that staff provide a staff memo at the meeting, which includes a recommendation on completeness based on checklist items. She said it's also governed by state statute.

"Staff uses our checklist, which is referenced in our regulations to determine completeness," Caron said.

Caron explained that a completed application means sufficient information is included or submitted to allow the board to make an informed decision.

She told the board that they can continue with the process of staff making recommendations based on the checklist or go with a different process.

"We can proceed with that process or we can look into doing things differently if the board has a suggestion on that," Caron said.

Planning Board Secretary, Jake Butler, said that depending on what is needed to be completed on the checklist then they should consider it complete, saying he thinks that's why they should look at things as a whole and see "what are the checklist items that are missing."

He said he felt something may not be warranted to pause the process and they could make it part of the condition of approval.

Planning Board Chair, Art Rugg, said the main issue is making sure they have the right information to make a decision.

Director of Engineering and Environmental Services, John Trottier, said there are some items they support for completeness only. He added that there are some they would never support like a waiver for a drainage report.

Caron said they can also use their own reasonable judgment to decide if an applicant is complete or not and it's within the board's jurisdiction to make a decision.

Caron stated some recent examples of where staff made recommendations, but the board went against the recommendations.

"This is me providing the board with information about how you can make your own decision when it comes to completeness," Caron said.

She said there are some checklist items they generally wouldn't recommend holding the process up over like signatures.

"We try to use discretion when reviewing the checklist items," Caron said.

When it comes to waiver requests, Caron said they make recommendations using their professional opinion and historically how they have made recommendations on specific waiver requests.

She said the board has the authority to make decisions on waiver requests.

Going forward, Caron explained she would state in the memo the specific state statutes they should look at when granting or denying waiver requests.

"That will be referenced in the staff memo going forward," Caron said.

Taking to the Trails: Keep Moving

PAUL MARGOLIN
LONDONDERRY TIMES

Sitting is not your friend. Harvard evolutionary biologist Daniel Lieberman reminds us of what we inherited from our hunter-gatherer ancestors: "We evolved to be athletes - you couldn't survive without being active. We are genetically programmed to run around and eat modest amounts of food." Unfortunately, many of today's chronic diseases stem from a mismatch between our genes and our modern lifestyle of "too much sedentary behavior and too much food."

In her 2020 book Exercise Is Medicine, health columnist Judy Foreman cites hundreds of studies that demonstrate why frequent physical activity is so important. For instance, people in physically demanding jobs are known to live longer, with less risk of cardiovascular disease, than those in most white collar jobs.

The landmark Framingham Heart Study has been monitoring the cardiovascular health of three generations of town residents. Its research has shown not just that exercise prevents heart disease, but that lack of exercise is actually a major risk factor for it.

In fact, sitting - whether its long hours working at a computer or watching TV - leads to increases in visceral fat. Says Foreman, "This is not just a blob of tissue, but an active organ that pumps out chemicals that can lead to chronic system inflammation, insulin resistance, hardening of the arteries, and neurological degeneration."

"There's no question that people who exercise more live longer and with less disability," says Lieberman. "Removing exercise is like removing air: You get sick."

The Good News

Who knew couch time could be so risky? And what can we do about it? Research has found that simply moving around for a couple minutes every hour mitigates the risks from long periods of sitting. And while sitting after eating leads to a spike in blood sugar, getting up and walking can cut those increases in half. Furthermore, you'll find it easier to regulate your appetite if you exercise regularly.

The World Health Organization's guidelines recommend 150 minutes of moderate exercise weekly; that's half an hour five times a week. Better yet, exercise vigorously and you can cut that to 75 minutes! Either a five minute jog or a 15 minute walk is beneficial. But frequency and intensity pay dividends.

Generally speaking, the more active we are, the better our body and mind perform and the longer and more healthful our lives will be. Exercise lowers the risk of heart disease and some cancers. It reduces blood pressure, fights diabetes, enhances brain function and lessens inflammation. It also produces anti-oxidants, can improve vision, and may even reverse skin aging.

It's good to know that we have the power in our own hands - and feet, and lungs - to harness our body's natural abilities and keep ourselves physically fit. Even people who don't start exercising until their 60s can develop healthier hearts and improved mobility. Aging does not, inevitably, lead to poor health - but sitting does.

Genes play a part, but our lifestyle choices - especially exercise - control 75% of our health and longevity. So: find ways to build exercise into your regular schedule - whether it's brisk walks on the Rail Trail, bike rides, rounds of golf (sorry, no cart), or jogging in your neighborhood - and you will be fortifying your health.

For more information on fitness, check out Exercise is Medicine, and consult with your physician.

Dave Wholley Addresses Council on the State of DPW

ALEX MALM
LONDONDERRY TIMES

After being director of the Department of Public Works for around two years, Dave Wholley, went in front of the Town Council on May 15 to discuss concerns they have about the department's facilities.

Wholley, who has lived in Londonderry far longer than he has been director, said he has seen a number of facilities become modernized over the last 20 years and wanted to make the case for why DPW should be considered for upgrades.

One of the concerns Wholley pointed to is the fact that equipment storage is uncovered, which causes elements to impact their equipment. He added that some of their equipment can be upwards of hundreds of thousands of dollars and he wants to be able to preserve it.

In addition, Wholley said there are concerns with the site conditions where their daily materials are being stored because of the mud and other conditions there since they don't have enough shed space to store everything. When it's muddy, Wholley said it can become difficult to plow.

Since the department doesn't have enough space to store everything, they also have to pay to rent storage trailers each month to store things like voting signs and other things the town needs for various events.

Wholley also pointed to the limitations they have because of their garage, which was built in 1971. He added that because of the tight space and work quarters it makes it almost impossible for more than one task to be done at a time. For example, if a truck is being worked on in the garage, they have to close it down.

"We do the best we can with what we have,"

Wholley said.

He said with more room they may be able to do more things in town than they currently do.

One example Wholley gave of a service they can't provide because of the limitation of their facility is not being able to treat all sidewalks during winter months because they don't have the room to store the equipment.

Wholley said they are looking to be able to have a feasibility study in the near future and said he has a potential idea of where a new facility could be located.

"I got some ideas on where we could relocate," Wholley said.

As part of the study, Wholley said they want to look at things like the appropriate square footage needed for the needs of the department, along with how the facility could help with other needs in town.

For example, he said they could look at areas like freeing up office and storage space at the Town Hall, or relocating the drop off center so they can have it year round.

Town Council Chair, John Farrell, noted that it would all have to go through the Capital Improvement Plan first, which Wholley recognized.

"This is step one of many," Wholley said.

As terms of what parcel of land Wholley has a preliminary idea about, it is the five acres of land next to Town Hall, which the town acquired to potentially have a municipality facility there one day. One of the main reasons Wholley said he likes the idea of having it there is because of the central location in town.

"We could take care of a lot of issues if we were located there," Wholley said.

The Upper Room Announces New Co-Parenting Classes

The Upper Room, a Family Resource Center, announces it will be offering co-parenting classes. Crossroads of Parenting & Divorce will take place on Saturday, June 10 from 9 a.m. - 2 p.m. in person at The Upper Room located at 36 Tseneneto Rd., Derry, NH.

going into the Division I playoffs.

The Lancers started the week with a match that took them and their competitor into uncharted territory. On Monday, May 15, the very tough squad from Hollis-Brookline High School took LHS into a fifth set in Londonderry, where LHS finally won their 11th match in a row.

The Cavaliers had not dropped a set all season and LHS hasn't needed a fifth set this year.

All but one of the sets were extremely competitive in this match, with the Cavs taking the first set in extra volleys, 29-27.

The Lancers came right back in the second, after climbing out from a HBHS lead early on in the set to win 25-21. The third set finished with the same 25-21 result and a LHS win.

The fourth set went the Cavs in a 25-14 finish.

The final set had Londonderry win 15-12, thus solidifying their place as the number one team in the state.

The win had a number of contributors: Spencer Brassard finished with 12 kills, 6 blocks and 2 digs; Ethan Munro had 3 kills and 2 digs; Cam Normand got 6 kills, 1 block, 20 assists, and 2 digs; Tyler Brown finished with 15 kills, 2 blocks, 17 assists, 8 digs, and 2 aces; Colin Ness got 6 kills, 1 block, and 3 aces; Trevor Edmunds had 5 kills and a block; Matt Doyle made four assists, 29 digs, and an assist; Victor Elguezabal got 11 digs; and Owen Evans finished with a kill, 10 digs, and an ace.

The following day, in another home match, the Lancers had a rematch with Pinkerton Academy, where they won once again in three straight sets. Set One went 25-20; Set 2 had a 25-21 result; and Set 3 finished 25-15.

Matt Doyle

Brassard had 8 kills; Munro got 8 kills and a block; Brown added 11 assists, 3 digs, and 3 aces; Normand got 15 assists and an ace; Edmunds finished with 7 kills and a dig; Ness had 5 kills, 2 blocks, 1 dig, and three aces; Elguezabal had a dig and an ace; Doyle put up one assist, 14 digs and 3 aces; Evans got 3 digs; Brady Joncas had 4 digs and 2 aces; Crosby Nolan stepped in for one dig and Kyle Rondeau had one kill and 4 digs.

The Lancers added one win to their spotless record at the end of the week, on Friday, May 19, in Farmington, where they put up their sixth shutout of the season.

Londonderry beat the Farmington tigers 25-10 in the first set, 25-23 in the second, and 25-17 in the third.

Brassard had 12 kills; Nolan got 7 kills and a block; Preston Carmody had one dig off the bench; Rondeau got 3 assists, 1 kill, 2 digs, and 3 aces; Brown finished with 4 assists, 1 kill, 1 dig, and an ace; Normand got 2 kills; Doyle had 3 assists, 2 digs, and an 1 ace; Elguezabal added an ace; Joncas got 1 assist, 2 digs, and 2 aces; Evans added one kill; and Ness tallied 4 kills and 4 aces.

The Lancers have three games left in the regular season, playing the Timberlane Owls (6-6) on the road on Monday; hosting Mascenic (1-11) on May 25; and finish the regular season on May 30 at John Stark (2-10).

Lady Lax Squad Head Into Final Week Looking for Wins

CHRIS PAUL
LONDONDERRY TIMES

The Londonderry High School Varsity Girls' Lacrosse team has not had a lot of victories to celebrate, but they recently raised their sticks in an 18-1 blowout against the Nashua North Titans.

The Lady Lancers took the lead right from the start, with sophomore Gabby Pedrick scoring from the right side of the net at the 22-minute mark.

From there, the scoring barrage continued throughout the first half resulting in a 14-1 Londonderry lead by the end of the first half.

The Lancers let up on the scoring in the second half, but the defense didn't allow another Titan goal as the clock continued running until the end of the contest.

Goals were scored by 11 Londonderry players during the 17-point win, with sophomore, Ava Naar getting three with one assist.

Juniors Madison Wholly, Natalie Washington, and Lilah Melia each had two goals and one assist.

Juniors Ashleigh Leone and Maya Silvestro also had two goals each.

Pedrick, Meghan Daileanes, Jill Leonardo, Emily Ouelette, and

Keira Strike all contributed one goal in the win.

The results weren't as good coming off that win with contests against Souhegan and Portsmouth.

At Souhegan High School, on Monday, May 15, the Sabers upped their season record to 6-5 with a 12-6 victory over LHS.

Leone scored three goals and had two assists in the game, while Naar managed two goals and an assist. Daileanes was the only other Lancer to put the ball in the net.

The final game of the week took place on Wednesday, May 17, in a out a single win in the three matches they played.

The 0-9 results came from: Exeter High School on Monday, May 15, at home; from Derryfield High School on the road, Wednesday, May 17; and from the Nashua North Titans on Friday, May 19.
